

Great People Doing Great Work at Region 8

- There is a lot of very good, very important work being done at Region 8, and there isn't enough time to talk about all of them. But when I recognize a few of those work products, I'm really recognizing all of you.
- The air team is working its way through six regional haze SIPs, and that's been a huge undertaking. At the same time they were able to complete work in record time on the Interim Final Rule for oil and gas on the Fort Berthold Reservation.
- The Libby team is dealing day in and day out with one of the most complicated and challenging Super fund sites in the country.
- The tribal program and the grants program are working together to help tribes get off high-risk status and are even getting other federal agencies together this fall to do a pilot on how they can work together with tribes. This will make a real difference in those tribes' capacity to do environmental work.
- Need I say it, but the groundwater investigation at Pavillion is a major undertaking attracting some of the best talent in ORD and here at R8.
